

SHORT PROFILE OF ADEOLA AWOGBEMI

Adeola Awogbemi is a Research and Development Consultant with 16 years' experience working with NGOs and CBOs in Africa. With a background in Political Science, her experience cuts across education, governance, gender, peace, and security. Her specialties include program design, planning & implementation, concept development & proposal writing, fund raising, monitoring & evaluation, advocacy & campaign management and election observation.

Adeola is an activist, mentor, trainer, facilitator and avid volunteer with extensive experience designing and implementing gender, capacity building and leadership development training and mentoring programs. She has facilitated various training sessions for various stakeholders and has coordinated several local and international seminars, training workshops and conferences on a range of development issues. She is an independent Evaluation consultant and currently the Executive Director, Ovie Brume Foundation.